Come home! Come to the hearts that love thee, to the eyes That beam in brightness but to gladden thine: Come where fond thoughts like holy incense is

Come home! Come to the hearth-stone of thy earliest days; Come to the ark like the o'er wearied dove; Come with the sunlight of thy heart's warm rays Come to the fireside circle of thy love-Brother, come home!

Come home! It is not home without thee; the lone seat Is still unclaimed where thou wert wont to be In every echo of returning fect, In vain we list for what should herald thee-Brother, come home!

Come home! We've nursed for thee the sunny buds of spring. Watch'd every germ a full blown floweret rear Saw o'er the bloom the chilly winter bring Its icy garlands, and thou art not here-Brother, come home!

Come home! Would I could send my spirit o'er the deep! Would I could wing it like a bird to thee, To commune with thy thoughts, to fill thy sleep With these unwearying words of melody-Brother, come home!

TIME STILL MOVES ON.

Time still moves on with noiseless pace, And we are loiters by the way; Few win and many loose the race, For which they struggle, day by day; And even when the goal is gained, How seldom worth the toil it seems! How lightly valued, when obtained, The prize that flattering hope esteems!

Submissive to the winds of chance, We toss on life's inconstant sea: This billow may our bark advance, And that may leave it on the lee: This coast, which rises fair to view. May thick be set with rocky mail: And that, which beetles o'er the blue, Be safest for the shattered sail.

The cloud that, like a little hand, Slow lingers when the morning shines; Expands its volume o'er the land, Dark as a forest sea of pines: While that which casts a vapory screen Before the azure realm of day, Rolls upwards from the lowland scene, And from the mountain-tops away.

Oh! fond decit! to think the flight Of time will lead to pleasures strange, And ever bring some new delight, To minds that strive and sigh for change, Within ourselves the secret lies, Let seasons vary as they will; our hearts would murmur, though our skies Were bright af those of Eden still!

THE WINE-CUP.

That wine-cup! touch it not! Youth, take thy hand away-Poverty fills it up With ruin and decay.

Oh, youngster, heed thee well, Ere thou has quaffed a drop-The seeds of death are there, Whose work thou eanst not stop!

Though it may sparkle well— Though it may be old and red, And suit thy palate well. Oft, 'tis the fatal goal,

That wine-cup, spurn it hence-

Whence leads the drunkard's path-Then heed it, yougster, well:-Shun wees the drunkard hath! When in the festive hall,

When merry goes the hour, Where are voices sweet and bland! Should there the wine-cup come, Creating higher joy, Oh, spurn the wine-cup then,

Thou meet'st a jovial band,

"Tis dangerous, my boy! When in the wide world youth, Thou hold'st thy devious way, rom the path of truth stations lead away! If, urg'd to drain the glass With thoughtless, heedless men, Oh, as thou lov'st thyself,

Touch not the wine-cup then! Should hours of darkness come, And thy heart's purpose fail-Should life to thee seem vain,

And earth a dreary vale! Oh, to the voice of truth Take heed, nor then be deaf. Shun-shun the wine-cup then
